Casemate Publishers and Book Distributors, LLC
1905 Lawrence Road
Havertown, PA 19083
Main Phone: 610-853-9131
Fax:610-853-9146
Internet: www.casematepublishers.com
Founded: 2001

COMPANY DESCRIPTION: The Casemate Group was established in 2001, when CEO, David Farnsworth, created new distribution company Casemate Publishers and Book Distributors LLC, distributing books in North America for leading specialist publishers. The company set up its own military history publishing imprint, Casemate Publishers and currently publishes 30–40 titles a year.

In July 2007, the company supported a management buyout of the Greenhill Books/Chatham Publishing sales and distribution operation, setting up its UK operation, Casemate UK, and became responsible for the sales, marketing, and distribution of a number of leading history and art book publishers, including Lund Humphries, Paul Holberton Publishing, Savas Beatie and Helion & Company. In December 2011,

In January 2009, Casemate Publishers launched brand Casemate Athena, a general trade distribution arm, distributing titles in North America for trade publishers, including fiction, travel, cookery, reference, nostalgia, heritage, sports, and gardening publishers. On January 1, 2015, Casemate acquired International Publisher’s Marketing (IPM), from Books International and merged its Athena brand into a new division, Casemate IPM.

In 2011, Casemate Digital was set up to provide digital distribution to its client publishers, being one of the first distributors to offer a global print and digital distribution service, working with publishers to develop their digital strategy, enabling their content to be available in all formats and growing its e-retailer account list to become one of the largest in the industry.

In 2014, the Casemate Group’s US academic and scholarly book distribution division, The David Brown Book Company, was rebranded Casemate Academic. Casemate Academic and together with UK sister company, Oxbow Books, provides sales, marketing, and distribution services for esteemed academic and scholarly book publishers, societies and institutes, worldwide. Oxbow Books is also the world’s leading archaeology publisher, publishing 70–80 titles a year.

Also in 2014, with the growth of its art book distribution service, the Casemate Group launched Casemate Art, providing sales representation, marketing and full distribution for leading art book publishers across the globe.

The company was also renamed The Casemate Group, and has grown to become the preferred distribution partner for publishers around the world.

Selective about our client publishers, we are renowned for our personal and professional service, with many of our clients having been with us for over 15 years.

Red Pencil Publicity + Marketing
2532 Santa Clara Avenue Suite 358
Alameda, CA 94501
Phone: 510.350.7822
Internet: www.redpencilpublicity.com
Founded 2010

COMPANY DESCRIPTION:
Helena Brantley is a publicist who specializes in promoting nonfiction books and events. In 2010, she began doing business as Red Pencil Publicity + Marketing from an office in Oakland, California. Today, with the help of a small team of subcontractors, Helena is hired by publishers, authors and increasingly non-profits, to promote their work to print, radio and online news outlets and to produce and promote events and engage online.

Early in her career, Helena worked at public relations, marketing and advertising agencies in New York City and Washington, D.C., where she promoted consumer brands. Later, she ran the communications office of a Nonprofit that helped to unite people of faith across the political spectrum on the issue of poverty. While working with HarperOne on the launch of the book God’s Politics, by Jim Wallis, Helena was recruited to work in their San Francisco office. She created and managed many book publicity campaigns, including a string of national and New York Times best-sellers. Helena served as the publicist of the Bay Area Book Festival in its first and second years and in 2015, she was the publicist for Berkleyside’s Uncharted Festival of Ideas and in 2017 became its co-curator.
